

8 Careers That Use AP[®] Statistics

Oh, the possibilities...

Engineers

Use statistics to predict how structures will act in the future and quantify uncertainties in planned projects.

Quantitative Analysts

Use statistics to solve problems in business, especially in finance and related areas.

Actuarial Scientists

Assign degrees of risk to events in the future.

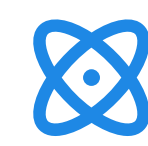

Medical Scientists

Conduct research on diseases to develop vaccines and medications to treat them.

Meteorologists

Using statistics, they predict the weather and investigate climate trends.

Scientists

Use statistics to test theories about the natural world and formulate predictions.

Financial Managers

Work with business management and executive teams to create financial plans that help the organization stay financially stable.

Applied Statisticians

Use statistics to extract information from data sets collected from a variety of sources, especially those that provide massive amounts of information.